Subject: Subsidiary Update – Launch of Artificial Intelligence ('AI') Education Platform KrishGuru

Dear Sir/Madam,

Alan Scott Enterprises Ltd. continues to reaffirm its long-term commitment to strengthening and scaling its group structure, comprising ten subsidiary companies, as detailed in the recent Business Review submitted to the Exchange. Each subsidiary is focused on building innovative, sustainable, and impactful solutions across its domain, and the recent development in our education subsidiary demonstrates this vision in action.

We are pleased to announce that one of our subsidiary, Alan Scott LearnIX Pvt. Ltd., has launched KrishGuru—an advanced AI-powered teaching and learning assistant for schools. The launch took place on Independence Day during Nand Utsav 2025 at VKK Public School, Barloot, District Sirohi, Rajasthan, in the esteemed presence of Acharya Agnivatji, Shri Otaram Dewasi, Hon'ble Minister of State (Independent Charge), Government of Rajasthan, and Shri Lumbaram Choudhary, Hon'ble Member of Parliament (Sirohi-Jalore, Rajasthan), along with several school principals from the region.

Designed to operate without internet connectivity, KrishGuru can teach, answer queries, provide guidance, facilitate experiments, and assess learning outcomes. The solution is currently under trial in more than 50 schools across three states, with commercial rollout scheduled for mid-November 2025. Importantly, several of its innovative features are currently patent-pending, reflecting the proprietary strength of the platform.

Aligned with the objectives of the National Education Policy (NEP), KrishGuru aims to make high-quality, interactive, and inclusive learning accessible to schools across India, bridging gaps in both teaching resources and digital availability.

This milestone launch underscores our group's focus on blending advanced technology with real-world utility, and we believe KrishGuru has the potential to significantly transform classroom learning in India and beyond.

This update is being disseminated for the information of all stakeholders.

Thanking you,

Yours faithfully,

For Alan Scott Enterprises Limited
